TravMedia's International Media Marketplace [IMM], the leading event connecting UK media with international tourism and travel brands, is set for a record-breaking event in 2016.

TravMedia UK's flagship media and industry event returns on 14 March, 2016 to London's QEII Centre, the largest dedicated conference and exhibition space in central London. (Website/official video: www.travmedia.com/immuk).

Headline sponsor Brand USA, the destination marketing organization for the United States, will invite the media to 'Visit the USA', when they meet with them in March. Their new call-to-action and website VisitTheUSA.com was soft-launched to the industry last month.

Anne Madison, Chief Strategy and Communications Officer for Brand USA, said: "The UK is a top source market for visitation to the United States and the International Media Marketplace program provides Brand USA and their partners a unique opportunity to meet with a high quality and quantity of UK media in the one day. We are excited to collaborate with TravMedia to support both the IMM London and IMM Sydney events in 2016."

In 2015, IMM attracted over 200 journalists and over 110 public relations professionals, with delegates pre-scheduling over 2850 meetings through IMM's Meetings Manager.

Already over 250 journalists have pre-registered for next year's event, including writers and editors whose focus extends beyond travel to include food, fashion, health and entertainment. Media titles already represented include The Times, The Telegraph, The Guardian, Daily Express, Sunday Express, Sunday Times, Metro, Independent on Sunday, Conde Nast Traveller, Wanderlust, National Geographic Traveller, BBC, Lonely Planet, Rough Guides, Travel Weekly, TTG, ABTA Magazine and Selling Travel.

IMM is a day-long event enabling tourism destinations and travel brands to showcase themselves to the nation's leading journalists. QEII Centre is the largest dedicated exhibition space in central London, situated in Parliament Square alongside Big Ben and the Houses of Parliament.

Said Henry Hemming, Managing Director of TravMedia UK: "We've established IMM as the leading media networking platform for global travel and tourism brands. Journalists can source a year's worth of output in a day, and for PR professionals the networking opportunity is unrivalled. Roll on March!"
