August 02, 2021

WASHINGTON, D.C. (August 2, 2021) - Brand USA's inaugural Public Relations Workshop and Global Media Forum delved into the latest global media landscape insight and travel trends in preparation for the much anticipated return of international travel. Across the two events (Jun. 29, and Jul. 20-21), the Brand USA Global Marketplace platform welcomed upwards of 250 U.S. partners and international journalists from 15 markets for inspiring sessions hosted by industry experts, and a series of virtual deskside meetings.

The events were designed to equip U.S. partners with the latest market intelligence and media developments from key markets, as well as provide international travel journalists with fresh sources of inspiration. The panel discussions explored current travel trends that can be experienced across the United States including; reconnecting with each other and nature, the power of photography in travel storytelling, how wellness is shaping the future of travel, epic trips which deliver unforgettable experiences, and the increasing desire to 'travel like a local'. The series of virtual deskside meetings offered a welcome opportunity for U.S. partners and international journalists to nurture relationships as the travel industry looks towards recovery.

"We're delighted to have been able to bring together more than 250 U.S. partners and journalists from 15 key source markets through these virtual events, demonstrating to international audiences that the U.S is ready to welcome friends and visitors back with open arms. The Public Relations Workshop and Global Media Forum took place at an opportune time for key industry insights and the latest tourism developments to be shared with U.S. partners and media alike," said Tom Garzilli, chief marketing officer at Brand USA.

All sessions from the PR Workshop and Global Media Forum are available in the Brand USA Global Marketplace Video On-Demand room under "Featured Content".

- Stay Curious About the World: A sense of curiosity, an open mind and a willingness to listen are the best ways for travelers to reconnect with destinations and local communities. Connecting with locals allows travelers to discover the most intriguing off-the-beaten path destinations and experiences.
- Wellness Tourism Redefined: The notion of wellness tourism is being redefined, stretching far beyond luxury spas and yoga retreats. There is a move to afford all types of travelers greater access to wellness experiences.
- Epic Trips To Indulge Pent-Up Wanderlust: The last 18 months have seen accommodation providers launch diversified and new products that emphasize wilderness escapes, as well as a dramatic increase in first time campers and new visitors to public lands and waters. Camping experiences in the U.S. range from boutique glamping and 'light touch' outdoor experiences for adventure-curious travelers, to wild camping and adrenaline activities for active adventurers.

- Travel Like a Local to Lesser-Known Destinations: Small towns in the U.S. have their own personalities, communities and cultures. Not only do these smaller destinations offer unexpected and unforgettable experiences, but also the journey there is often its own reward. In partnership with Brand USA, Atlas Obscura is in production on a new video series, “Small Town, Big Story,” which uses a documentary-style approach to share travel experiences across the country visiting small towns to learn about the legends and lore that make them special. “Small Town, Big Story” will be available on Brand USA’s on-demand streaming platform GoUSA TV in late 2021.

In preparation for the return of international travel, Brand USA and its U.S. partners will continue conversations with journalists who attended the Global Media Forum. The media markets in attendance were Canada, Mexico, the U.K., Ireland, Italy, Spain, Germany, the Netherlands, Austria, Switzerland, France, Belgium, Poland, Scandinavia, and Luxembourg.
